Q: Expressionengine: I am getting a error "Expressionengine has not been properly configured to be used in a development environment" While trying to run expressionengine site I get the following error ExpressionEngine has not been properly configured to be used in a development environment. I am running Windows 7 A: What does this tell you? ExpressionEngine has not been properly configured to be used in a development environment. You have to run this (assuming you are running Windows) expressionengine/expressionengine If you are on a Mac I'm not sure what happens - someone else will have to answer that... Update: as Nick points out, if you have a version of EE installed, you may need to do: php -m | grep exe GitHub meets BitBucket meets Git - jeromegn jamesv is in the process of building a community service with a similar goal to GitHub/BitBucket/Git.GitHub/BitBucket/Git is a cms of sorts that allows users to store their content and collaborate with others via a git repository, as opposed to a traditional web page. There is no bandwidth problem on a startup, so perhaps the biggest problem they face is attracting a community. The site is in its very early stages.If you are interested in the idea, and are interested in helping develop it, you can follow jamesv and the project at <http://jamesv.com>. ===== jsmeaton Have you considered just using GitHub for this? It seems like you're just trying to reinvent the wheel. You can already create repos on Github, and pull 54b84cb42d
